

Leadership

Leadership is both simple and impossible.
The best definition of leadership probably is "working with people as Jesus did."

He did not lead as a "task" but by being who He was.
He didn't lead to become powerful or influential but because people needed to be led.
He didn't lead by pushing but by stepping out ahead.
He didn't lead by commanding but by inviting.

He led groups of people by leading each individual.

He led willing to stand alone and take the heat.
He had the "right" to lead because He was the Son of God,
but He "earned" the respect to lead by the way
He treated His people.

Everything He did contributed to His ability to lead.
Everything He did (healing, teaching, befriending, rebuking, etc.)
was part of His actual leadership.
